

Mentoring is a partnership.

As a mentor, the most important thing you can do is cultivate a strong relationship with the individual you are mentoring. Your success will depend on it. And with all good relationships, your mentoring relationship must be built on a foundation of support and encouragement.

Great mentoring relationships create partnerships that are built on a few basic principles:

- They guide, not command or instruct
- They offer support instead of rewards or punishment
- They encourage career development and growth
- They seek to challenge thinking, not dictate right and wrong
