Learning On Demand
Ohio's e-Learning Resource

LeanOhio has partnered with Learning on Demand (LOD) to provide process improvement training to reach a much broader audience located throughout the state. The training provides content on Six Sigma, with added focus on data and data analysis to promote objective problem-solving and decision-making. The Online LeanOhio Green Belt Training is available to State of Ohio exempt employees with agencies participating in the Employee Development Fund (EDF), as well as all Information Technology (IT) professionals. This online training, not only benefits employees throughout the different regions of Ohio, it also helps those employees who like to take their time assimilating and retaining information at their own pace.

A Lean Six Sigma Green Belt is an essential component of every project team. Whether you are tasked with leading projects or looking to expand your knowledge, the new online LeanOhio Green Belt program will help you develop skills in process improvement tools, techniques, and applications. The program offers content on Six Sigma, with added focus on data and data analysis to promote objective problem-solving and decision-making.

The Online LeanOhio Green Belt program is aligned to the American Society of Quality (ASQ) Body of Knowledge. The program pre-requisite included the completion of the LeanOhio Boot Camp and submission of the A3 project results to LeanOhio. Upon completion of the coursework, you will become proficient in the basic analytical tools necessary to Define, Measure, Analyze, Improve, and Control Lean Six Sigma improvement projects. In addition, completion of coursework will assist employees toward achieving their LeanOhio Green Belt certification and becoming productive members of their project teams.
