Hurricane Relief Agency Relief Efforts:

- American Red Cross - Red Cross disaster workers from all over the country have mobilized to help shelter, feed and support people affected by Florence and Michael during this relief operation. The Red Cross has also mobilized emergency response vehicles and hundreds of trailers of equipment and supplies.
- AmeriCares - An emergency team has visited shelters and met with partners to conduct assessments and distribute locally-procured hygiene items - protecting health and providing comfort to those waiting to hear when they can return. With reports coming in about damaged health facilities along the Florida coast, the team is working to visit health center partners directly to assess the full extent of the damage and respond to immediate needs.
- ASPCA (American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) - After Hurricane Florence made landfall, tens of thousands of residents, their pets, and homeless animals were displaced. The ASPCA deployed responders with rescue boats, trucks, and supplies to the area — ready to assist animals and impacted communities.
- Church World Service – Church World Service has already shipped over $1.55 million in supplies for Hurricane Florence relief. Now their response is expanding to include Hurricane Michael. Help continue to provide relief supplies and make sure that some of our most vulnerable neighbors – refugee and immigrant communities – can rebuild.
- Direct Relief - Direct Relief has committed an initial $200,000 in cash and made available its current inventory of more than $100 million in medications and other medical products in response to the unfolding emergency on the U.S. East Coast caused by Hurricane Florence. Direct Relief also supports more than 190 health facilities in Hurricane Michael’s path, located throughout Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas.
- Episcopal Relief & Development - Episcopal Relief & Development is partnering with dioceses in the impacted area to equip congregational and diocesan leadership with critical tools and resources as they prepare to serve the most vulnerable communities impacted by the storm.
- Global Impact – we have launched a Hurricane Florence Relief Fund featuring many of the charity partners on this list and organizing partner information around Hurricane Michael response.
- International Medical Corps - International Medical Corps has mobilized resources and deployed emergency response teams to the Carolinas, where Hurricane Florence caused catastrophic. International Medical Corps has also sent multiple teams of doctors and nurses to Florida to respond to Hurricane Michael.
- International Orthodox Christian Charities - Since 2001, IOCC has responded after numerous disasters in the United States, including Hurricanes Harvey and Irma in 2017. In addition to emotional and spiritual care, IOCC provided emergency food and nonfood items, muck-out assistance, clean-up kits, and generators in affected areas.
- International Relief Teams - San Diego-based International Relief Teams (IRT) is supplying relief aid to victims of Hurricane Florence on the East Coast. IRT has 30 years of experience in assisting victims of disasters, both nationally and internationally. IRT has already delivered more than $1.3 million in aid to the victims of last year’s hurricanes Harvey, Irma, and Maria, and plans to deliver significant ongoing help to the victims of Hurricanes Florence and Michael.
- MAP International - MAP's team delivered 4,000 Disaster Health Kits to staging centers in Windsor, NC and Tabor City, NC ahead of Hurricane Florence, and crews have already distributed these kits to the thousands residing in hurricane shelters throughout the region. MAP International's Disaster Response Team is also actively working to provide Disaster Health Kits' to help those sheltered from Hurricane Michael.

- Medical Teams International – Medical Teams is working with trusted partners on the ground who were among the first to help evacuees receive care. Already, thousands of Disaster Health Kits have been provided to families waiting out the storm in emergency shelters. These kits provide essential items to help prevent the spread of disease and illness in close quarters. Each kit includes antiseptic wipes, soap, toothbrushes, toothpaste and other vital items — enough to meet the needs of one person for a full week and help restore their dignity during this crisis.
- Mercy Corps - We are on the ground working with local organizations and assessing the situation, ready to help those most affected by the destruction. We expect the most urgent needs in the U.S. will be shelter, clean water, access to power and emergency cash to purchase basic supplies and repair homes.
- Project HOPE - While Project HOPE's emergency response typically focuses on international crises, we deploy domestically when we are needed.
- Rise Against Hunger - Rise Against Hunger is committed to providing emergency relief in situations where our aid is needed and effective. We have provided assistance in the form of warehouse space, truck usage or other types of aid. We are part of a coalition of non-profit organizations, that works together to assess situations like Hurricane Florence and provide emergency support, and will continue to take direction in times of emergency from FEMA and local government officials in times of crisis.
- Save the Children – Essential child-focused supplies are being delivered in the areas impacted by Hurricanes Florence and Michael. Our immediate priority is to distribute critical supplies and other support for young children and families. In the days and weeks ahead, our response will include working with damaged schools and child-care centers so children can get back to their normal routines as quickly as possible and parents can return to work.
- United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR) - Cleaning Kits, Tool Trailers and other supplies have been strategically placed throughout the region. Moreover, experienced Early Response Teams (ERTs) and Disaster Response Coordinators (DRCs) are prepared to assist immediately when conditions are safe for entry.
- UNICEF, The U.S. Fund for - UNICEF is closely monitoring the storms' effects. As with our successful partnerships following Hurricane Harvey (City of Houston) and Hurricane Maria (Puerto Rico), our efforts will adhere to UNICEF's core priorities: health, education, child protection and psychosocial support.
- World Renew - World Renew specializes in providing home repair and reconstruction services in the recovery process, and offers early assessments, rapid response, training in local community organizing, unmet needs assessment surveys, building estimates, and skilled volunteer work teams as well as short-term work groups.
- World Vision - These relief supplies include food, temporary shelter items (such as tents and sleeping bags), hygiene items, coolers, and flood cleanup kits. We are also identifying church and community partners in affected areas. This allows our response teams to mobilize quickly from our domestic disaster response hub in North Texas and our field site in Philippi, West Virginia.
