

TRAINING AND DEVELOPMENT IS YOUR ROAD TO THE FUTURE!

While you may be primed to apply your digital technology skills, have you thought about how to successfully communicate, collaborate, and make decisions in the digital age?

Consider additional training, which is a smart investment. Training paves the way to possibilities such as new opportunity, growth, and advancement. Even though training and development can lead to positive outcomes, it is often overlooked and under-valued.

You have the tools at your fingertips to seek the training you need before you become a statistic.

Training is your road to the future to help support your professional development. Participate for your own personal growth and encourage co-workers and members of your team to become more active in developing and improving their skills.

For example, you can prepare for the technological and soft skills aspects of digital transformation. Through Learning on Demand, the Digital Transformation Collection is now available.

This exciting new program offers:

- Seven proficiency domains designed for the digital age, including Agility for Digital Transformation
- Engaging, high definition video-based learning content
- Short microlearning topics available on a variety of devices
